Dear James:

I just received your letter, and was not surprised to hear from you, because a letter I had sent you had just been returned to me, and I decided you must be back in the country.

I was glad to hear from you, and glad to know you have decided to come back to play ball. I do hope the long lay off has not hurt your playing. I am sure it has not. Did you play any ball at all while in the army?

Now in your letter you asked could you get a job up here. I think it would be better to wait until the first of the year. For one thing we are getting ready to go to the baseball meeting in Chicago and the we are going to Norfolk for Christmas. I will stop by to see you on my way south after Christmas in Norfolk. I am sure you will be able to get a job the first of the year. You would only need it for about three months, as we will be going to camp the last of March or first of April.

Write me right back, and let me know what you plan to do. I hope all the family is well.

Very Truly Yours
